LAUNCH TASKS

Completed

☒ Centered and balanced main sections

Prime Days uses clean retail sizing; July 4th keeps its cinematic full-screen feel.

☒ Matched OEM grid sizing across both pages

Desktop grid width, image ratios, spacing, and card density now align.

☒ Improved tablet section height

Prime tablet height relaxed; July tablet sections avoid awkward internal scrolling.

☒ Added dynamic July 4th section dots

Dots are generated from actual page sections and scroll to the correct areas.

Remaining / Recommended Before Launch

☐ Validate product data HIGH

Check prices, SKUs, discounts, stock notes, CARB notes, and links against the spreadsheet/export.

☐ Run responsive screenshot QA HIGH

Review mobile, tablet, laptop, and desktop screenshots for clipping, cramped grids, and nav overlap.

☐ Add reduced-motion support to July 4th page MEDIUM

Limit fireworks, canvas effects, and looping animations for accessibility and performance.

☐ Add SEO / social metadata MEDIUM

Add Open Graph title, description, preview image, Twitter card, and theme color where missing.

☐ Standardize link behavior MEDIUM

Decide whether campaign links should open same-tab or new-tab and make both pages consistent.

☐ Confirm legal disclaimers HIGH

Verify sale dates, coupon exclusions, rewards restrictions, emissions/CARB language, and California privacy copy.

☐ Add click/copy tracking hooks LOW

Track code copies, product clicks, section navigation, and primary CTA clicks.

☐ Performance polish LOW

Pause July fireworks when hidden, reduce particle count on mobile, and audit image loading.

Suggested Next Order

☐ 1. Product/pricing validation

This is the highest-risk launch item.

☐ 2. Responsive screenshot QA

Catch visual issues before copy/metadata polish.

☐ 3. Accessibility and reduced motion

Especially important for the animated July 4th page.

☐ 4. SEO, tracking, and final legal review

Last-mile launch polish.
